3. Technical documents.
4. Business documents.
5. PP Presentations
6. Mandarin or Cantonese.

Why?

- » Business and Trade Opportunities: English is a common language in international business. Translating business-related documents can aid in negotiations, contracts, and overall business communication.
- » Wider Audience Reach: English is one of the most widely spoken languages globally. Translating into English can help reach a broader audience, potentially expanding the document's impact or accessibility.
- » Global Communication: English is often the language of international communication in various fields such as business, science, and academia. Translating into English can facilitate better global connections and understanding.
- » Access to Resources: Many online resources, publications, and databases are predominantly available in English. Translating a document into English could grant easier access to these valuable resources.
- » Educational and Research Impact: If the document contains research findings or educational content, translating it into English can increase its visibility and contribution to the global academic community.
- » Cultural Exchange: Translating allows for the sharing of cultural insights, ideas, and perspectives between Chinese-speaking and English-speaking communities, fostering better understanding and collaboration.
